

NEURODEGENERATIVE DISEASES

Studies in rodents suggest that a vaccine containing antibodies that target beta-amyloid can reduce its accumulation and decrease tau neurofibrillary tangles, two hallmark signs of Alzheimer's Disease.

Animal models for Parkinson's Disease have led to promising new techniques to reverse motor impairment.