

Sugar Glider

Sugar gliders certainly live up to their name. Not only can these marsupials be sweet, but they can glide nearly half the length of a soccer field! This unique capability has fascinated scientists and allowed them to study gliding physiology. Sugar gliders are also involved in aerobic metabolism and depression research.

